congratulations

ON YOUR FEATHERED FAMILY MEMBER

The perfect blend of beauty and brains, birds are highly intelligent, social animals that make great companions. Your bird will thrive on a steady routine of plenty of playtime and daily interaction with you.

GETTING TO KNOW YOU

When adding a bird to the family, it's helpful to understand the similarities and differences among the various species. You may have had a parakeet in the past, but that doesn't mean living with a cockatiel will be a similar experience!

BIRD'S THE WORD.

Learn a little bit more about the three most common types of pet birds and see what makes yours unique.

PARAKEETS
A popular pick for first-time bird parents, these colorful, social birds can be quieter than some larger species and are sometimes referred to as budgies.

COCKATIELS
Friendly, quirky and bubbling with personality, cockatiels love to whistle and can form a strong bond with human family members through daily interaction.

CONURES
Another popular choice for first-time bird parents, conures are playful, lovable pets who tend to be curious and outgoing. They come in a variety of colors and personalities, making it easy to find the perfect feathered friend to fit your family.

feathering their nest

Below are the basics to get through your first few days smoothly. It's helpful to set up your new pet's habitat BEFORE you bring them home. Petco makes it easy to get what your pet needs. Shop in-store or online at petco.com. You can even get delivery within two hours. See if your neighborhood is part of PetcoNow at instacart.com/petco.
